CENSURE VOTE DEBATE A MARK IN BRITISH HISTORY

Mr. Balfout Blames the Government for Manner in Which They Had Dealt With King's Prerogative

MR. ASQUITH'S REPLY

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON-The second week in August will be a landmark in British history as long as records of the empire endure. Towards the end of July amendments were inserted by the House of Lords in the Parliament bill, and the bill as amended was sent to the House of Commons. Somewhat unexpectedly, early in August, the leader of the opposition announced his intention to move a vote of censure on the government, and asked a day for this purpose. This request was granted.

On Aug. 7 in a very full House, Mr. Balfour rose to move the vote of censure on the government. The motion was in the following terms: "That the advice given to his majesty by his majesty's ministers, whereby they obtained from his majesty a pledge that a sufficient number of peers would be created to pass the Parliament bill in the shape which it left the house, is a gross violation of constitutional liberty, whereby, among other evil consequences, rule." R. D. LITTLE AND G. F. TOUCHARD WIN THE NATIONAL DOUBLES

Defeat F. B. Alexander and port Tournament in Hard-Fought Match

WARM APPLAUSE

NEWPORT, R. I.—In one of the hardest-fought championship doubles matches ever seen on the famous Casino courts, here, Raymond D. Little and Gustav F. Touchard of New York, eastern doubles champions and challengers, defeated Frederick B. Alexander and Harold H. Hackett of New York, national doubles champions during the past four years, and defenders, two sets to one, 7-5, 13-15, 6-2, 6-4.

Both teams played brilliant tennis at times and they were quite everly matched.

Both teams played brilliant tennis at times and they were quite evenly matched as is shown by the score. The challengers, however, showed some of their best form of the year and would not be denied. Their victory was warmly applauded by the large gallery present.

Several good matches were played in the singles section, one of them being that between K. H. Behr and B. P. Schwangers, the Canadian champion. Behr gave a fine exhibition and disposed of the Canadian in three straight sets.

A. H. Dabney sprang the biggest surprise of the tournament when he defeated E. P. Larned, winner of the Longwood bowl and brother of the present champion, in three sets to two. This was the first upset of the tournament. Dabney played in his best form and won 6-4; 2-6; 6-2; 9-11; 6-1.

Dean Mathey of Princeton won his match with E. H. Whitney, the Harvard interscholastic champion, and B. C. Wright, the former champion, defeated L. J. Hunt of Newport.

The second day's play in the all-com ers singles finds a large majority of the weaker players eliminated. Many defaults were reported Monday, but outside of that of W. J. Clothier, former national champion, who was detained in mated expense of $9000 for a secondary New York on business, none of the favorites failed to appear.

The gallery was large and appreciative for a first day. From 9 o'clock to nearly sundown the play went on, a constant string of hopeful contestants going out and happy victors coming in. The outcome of no less than 90 matches were settled, although 36 of these were won by default.

WASHINGTON-Politics occupied a large place in the deliberations of the extra session of Congress. Legislation was attempted by both parties with eyes turned toward the presidential campaign of 1912 and it is interesting to read the following responses, which the United Press sends out today under a copyright line, to its question, "What do you think of the extra session?"

PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICANS

VICTOR MURDOCK, representative from Kansas-By far the most import ant thing that has transpired at this session of Congress has been the announcement of Representative Underwood that hereafter caucuses will be open to the public and to the press. In making this statement I recognize the fact that important legislation has been under conideration, but it should be remembered that an open caucus will do more to shape this legislation in the interests of the people than anything else that could be done by Congress.

We have taken two steps in the right direction in the matter of the popular election of United States senators and the passage of a corrupt practises act. This matter does not go far enough by any means, but it is certain we will have additional legislation along those lines in the near future. With these two bills on same leader. From this point of view, the judges will be demanded by the people the statute book Congress can be depended on to be thoroughly representative of the people.

The condition of Congress I would West. liken to a sensative film, which only awaits development. Unless I am mistaken the people are now fairly well satisfied with conditions in Congress and feeling so they should and will turn prised our friends and dumfounded our dent himself has been compelled to contheir attention to the judiciary. Congress is now responsive to the will of the dinary in the amount and quality of the initiative, the referendum and the repeople. The judiciary is not. It should work done in the House by the combined call, with the sole exception of the jube made so and I am absolutely confident that it will be made so in the near bined Democrats and insurgents and the comdiciary.

The President's refusal to accept the

JOSEPH L. BRISTOW, senator from Kansas-The special session has not accomplished what it should have done, though it has to its credit some substantial legislation. The corrupt practises act will have some restraining influence on excessive expenditure of money in congressional and senatorial elections. The reciprocity bill, I think, will not produce satisfactory results. I think it will slightly reduce the price of farm products, but not the cost of living, because the reduction will all be absorbed Efforts of the progressive Republicans to reduce excessive duties on manufaction between the President, standpat Republicans and certain Democratic leaders.

The passage by the Senate of the festivity abroad, nearly every speaker resolution for direct election of senators is the greatest triumph of the session for progressives. But that is tied up in conference, because certain southern Democrats demand as a price of direct elections that the federal government shall give up the power it has vitations to the international meeting

FASHIONS AND THE HOUSEHOLD

SAILOR SUIT FOR YOUNG GIRL

Blouse is made with front and back portions

THE sailor suit is one always in demand for young girls. This one is exceptionally smart. It includes the big sailor collar and it can be made with or without a yoke over the hips. The blouse can be made with a yoke facing and without opening at the front as illustrated, or it can be made without the facing and either with or without an opening at the front, and the collar can be made round in place of square. Many blouses of this sort are worn loose and this one can be treated in that way or be supplied with a casing and ribbon, as shown in one of the small views.

The suit consists of blouse and skirt. The blouse is made with front and back portions. The sailor collar finishes the neck edge and the shield is adjusted under it. The yoke when used is applied over the blouse. Both the long and short sleeves are cut in one piece each, but the long sleeves are finished with straight cuffs, the elbow sleeves with rolled-over cuffs. The skirt is cut in five gores, the front gore giving a panel effect.

. For the 16 year size will be required 91/4 yards of material 27 inches wide, 75% yards 36 or 51/4 yards 44, with 5% yard 27 inches wide for collar and cuffs. The width of the skirt at the lower edge is 3 yards, 2 yards when plaited.

The pattern (7110) is cut in sizes for misses of 14, 16 and 18 years of age, and can be had at any May Manton agency, or will be sent by mail. Address 132 East Twenty-third street, New York, or Masonic temple, Chicago.

One of the points we make is this, that the Monitor circulates nationally among people of more than ordinary purchasing ability, intelligence and discrimination.

Another point we make about the Monitor is that it is a home paper considered desirable by such a class of people.

A third point we make about the Monitor is that it is not ephemeral, as is the average daily newspaper, but has a secondary circulation, a passed-along circulation, which is just as valuable to the advertiser as is our primary circulation.

Interestingly enough, all three of these points are proved in a letter which we received recently from Samuel T. Bodine, general manager of the United Gas Improvement Company of Philadelphia, written in reply to a letter from us soliciting advertising.

He writes: "I heartily indorse all that you say, and all that you quote Collier's Weekly as saying, in praise of your paper. I have read it regularly for the last three years with great pleasure and profit; for two years of that time I sent it abroad to my family, as I consider it one of the very best newspapers published in the United States."

If you really wish to feel that your advertising is reaching this kind of people and reaching them right, you should include the Monitor in your advertising this fall.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON—The U. S. weather bu-reau predicts weather today as follows for New England; Fair tonight, cooler in northwest portion: Wednesday generally fair, except showers in northwest portion.

fair, except showers in northwest portion.

The disturbance that was central over Minnesota yesterday morning has moved eastward during the last 24 hours to Ontario. It has produced unsettled weather with showers in the upper Mississippl valley and lake regions. Showers also were reported from the lower Mississippl valley and the south Atlantic coast. The greatest amount reported during the last 24 hours was 2.74 inches, from Little Rock, Ark. The temperature continues high in the Southwest. Oklahoma, Okla., reported a maximum temperature of 104 degrees. An area of high pressure with low temperature is moving in from the Northwest. Light frosts were reported from North Dakota.

Conditions favor for this vicinity fair weather followed by increasing cloudiness and slightly higher temperature tonight; Wednesday probably local showers.

MADE MONEY IN LAST FIVE YEARS

LANSING, Mich.-A report issued Prof. J. R. Finlay, a New York engineer, who has recently completed an appraisal of the valuation of Michigan mines for the state tax commission, presented figures relative to the great opper mining district. appraisal was made by direction Anaconda of the Legislature in order to determine Arizona Com whether these classes of property are paying their share of taxation.

Mr. Finlay values the copper mines at $69,815,000, the iron mines at $119,485. 000 and the coal at $861,745. Of these figures the increase comes particularly Greene-Cananea 614 in iron mines, while the copper mines are not increased to any extent over the Mayflower figures at which these properties have Mohawk ... een assessed.

Discussing the copper situation, Mr. Finlay stated:

"Only nine copper companies in Michigan made money during the last five years. If we could assume that these mines would last forever the investor would probably be satisfied with 5 per cent income and he would probably capitalize their average earnings at $8,240,-000 into a present value for the group of 191/2 $164,800,000. The fact is that these 19% 19% 19% amount, because their future is not by mines are not worth even half of this

TWO PER CENT FOR SOUTHERN RAILWAY MAY BE DECLARED

No Designation Is Likely to Be Made on the Disbursement as to Whether It Is to Be Regular

ENJOYS PROSPERITY

That Southern Railway directors will declare a dividend of 2 per cent during the coming month on the preferred stock is regarded as a foregone conclusion in many Wall street quarters. It is not the expectation that the stock will be placed on a 2 per cent semi-annual basis, but rather that no designation will be placed upon the disbursement, leaving the folowing declaration to be determined when the time arrives, just as was the cas last February, when 1 per cent was de-

The directors will take such action. is believed, largely in response to the reat number of requests that stock holders have made following the close of the very prosperous period Southern Rail way enjoyed in the 1911 fiscal year. In the 12 months ended June 30 the road earned for its $60,000,000 preferred stock over twice the sum needed to pay the maximum dividend of 5 per cent to which the issue is entitled.

Estimating other income and charges outhern Railway earned a balance after charges in the fiscal year just closed of approximately $6,700,000, equal to 11.3 er cent on the preferred. This compare with 9.5 per cent shown in 1910, 5.9 per cent in 1909 and 4 per cent in 1908. The wonderful improvement which took place between 1908 and 1911 is due to the very healthy expansion that has taken place in the road's business and to a flattering reduction in the operating ratio. Gross in 1908, for instance, was $53,000,000 and the operating ratio was 75.2 per cent. In 1911 gross exceeded $60,000,000, while the operating ratio was cut to almost 67 per cent. This difference of 8.2 per cent in ration represented a saving in net, on the 1911 gross, of over $4,900,000. Whether or not Southern Railway directors would be justified in paying regular dividends at this time is unanswerable question. The bald facts. if course, would seem to warrant it. The road has just closed a year showing the largest balance after charges in its history and a wonderful improvement in its efficiency, and is entering upon a period of boom times in its territory. The coming cotton crop is expected to R I Co reach 14,000,000 bales, worth somewhere near $1,000,000,000. This means another hig year for Southern, making three rec ord breakers in succession. On the other hand, the company in 1334 the past has been exploited for the the past has been exploited for the sisted on distributing dividends when the money should have gone to develop a property unable to take care of the May business thrust upon it. Payment of dividends on the preferred before they were justified was said to be on greatest mistakes committed under the sept. old regime. Physical upbuilding had been neglected to such an extent that when the dividend was passed in January, 1908, earning power had undergone serious impairment For instance, from 1901 to 1907 South ern carned an aggregate surplus of about $27,000,000, of which $17,000,000 was paid out in preferred dividends. When it was dent: over, Southern Railway was paying $45.60 out of every $100 of receipts for costs of conducting transportation, general and 'traffic expenses. Before it erat and started only $36.20 was paid out. Bone started only $36.20 was paid out. Bone of distributing bankers sometimes sharpen out the meaning of such things, so when Southern Railway had to do some new financing its bonds remained for a long time with the syndicate of German bankers who took them from Southern Railway at less than 80 cents on the dollar. Thus a tremendous bond discount item was piled up on the debit side of Southern Railway's balance sheet which the company has been busily wiping out ever since. At the close of the 1910 fiscal year the amount was reduced to $4,853,-145, and it has been the opinion of con-Pig tin ended quiet; spot, £190 10s., servative people that this should be overbought conditions of Monday, on account of the frost report in the North-Spanish pig lead firm; up 1s. 3d. to £14 space of time elapse after the final ab-1s. 3d.; spelter unchanged at £27 15s.; sorption before indulging in further dishe may be. The object of this, Sadid Khan explained, being to arrest Persian subjects under the pretext that they are formulated with regard to this subject four years ago. The Algerian Parliament, much to its credit, made a great effort with a view to extending education in the colony, and it will be remembered that at a later date when they applied to the home government to sanction a loan of f.175,000,000 for improvements in the colony, the government required them to state definitely what they were prepared themselves to do for education there. They eventually undertook to expend f.10,000,000 in 30 and it seemed as though nothing could prevent its accomplishment. Visions of marvelous changes were already en tertained. The whole physiognomy of Algeria would be transformed when once she had 120,000 native children studying at one and the same time the French and French civilization as well. What a step it would be towards interested readers. In its leading article 12½ of these safes contain together the complete "francisation" of Algeria.

These visions, however, have not been realized and the rector has admitted that the promises made have not been carried out, for out of the 180 new classes that they were suposed to inclasses that they were suposed to in-augurate in the last three years they have been able to open 51, that is to speaks from first-hand knowledge, besay less than one third.

The Temps lavs this down to a false idea which it considers crept into the scheme at the very beginning, namely that to accomplish much they believed it would be possible to organize education on a cheap basis, and they now perceive that this is not practicable.

The art of teaching is after all an art just like any other. One may have greater or less aptitude for it, but nobody possesses it naturally; in short it has to be learnt, and Algeria believed that the 60 auxiliary classes which were to be opened every year could be directed by people who had never learnt

Teachers Lacking

The colony already had in the normal school of Bouzareah near Algiers a department where native teachers were instructed in the accepted methods of pedagogy. contemplate them glorified by divine energies and governed by divine laws; uncapacities lend themselves to the appearing of good have they any value at all; and only as we deepen in apprecia-tion of good are we serving our fellows or letting them truly serve us.

How, we may ask, is one to value more keenly either individual or univer sal goodness? Experience, for one thing generally brings us to it. Stung by evil we usually turn from it to something better, in our desires, if not at once in our immediate actions. And such is the law of God, who is the one altogether good, that any honest desire for good variety and were displayed in two great quickens our esteem for it, our recognition of it and eventually our performance of it. to overcome all obstacles in the way of having a great artist visit them has just been displayed by the little mountain town of Nelson, B. C. Hearing that Mme. Nordica would pass through their city en route from Spokane to Calgary, the local music lovers became deeply interested in getting the diva to stop off brated for its sweet voice. He is called not for and give a concert in Nelson. The prospects for accomplishing this did not at kajika, and the people pay as much as $10 for a pair of these marsh musifirst appear encouraging. The required guarantee was large and the theater was small, but these facts could not daunt western determination. If the theater, with every seat occupied at advanced prices, was even then too small to furnish the required guarantee, then they would fill it twice. The committee in charge made but one request of Frederic Shipman, the diva's manager, namely, that the customary interval in the middle of the program be extended to 15 minutes, the program otherwise to be the same as usual and they guaranteed to the rest. This being agreed to, the committee set to work and inside of two days the house was entirely sold out, but in a unique manner, over half of the seats having been sold twice. A large portion of the audience will remain dur-ing the entire program but many will remain for the first half only. The seats that are vacated during the interval will be immediately filled by holders of tickets for the second half at the same price. Though Nelson's beautiful little theater will seat but slightly over 600, nearly 1200 will be privileged to hear Nordica.—Musical Leader. One, B; two, ridge; three, Bridget. Competition or What?

RECENT decisions of the supreme court, yet more recent revelations of methods of high finance and arguments for federal control of business put forth by federal officials and by important figures in corporation circles, as well as the trend of opinion in Congress and in the press, all indicate that the Sherman law is to be debated henceforth with an intensity that is unprecedented. Business conditions are such as to lead many persons to wish that all public discussion of methods of doing business might cease, and especially that legislatures would abstain from all law-making bearing on trade and transportation. The hope is not likely to be realized. A presidential election impends, involving far-reaching results to parties and to persons. Its outcome will be determined largely by the attitude of candidates toward issues which "business" would like to have fade away. The price of democracy, like that of all other forms of government, has to be paid sooner or later, and such a price is not always a low one.

Admitting, then, the futility of expecting that investigation is to cease or that the American electorate is to abstain from insisting on governmental probing and control of business, what is the best policy to urge? Obviously one of utmost candor and fairness. If there is to be more rather than less governmental control, if the era of competition has passed, as Messrs. Roosevelt, Wickersham, Gary and Perkins contend, or if it has not, as many of the leading captains of industry and most traders and manufacturers of the country still believe, then let the final decision be made only after fullest investigation. It may come through such an inclusive study of the situation as Congressman Littleton has urged on Congress as the result of his experience sitting on the House committee probing the steel trust; or it may come through the special committees of Congress. The only way out of the tangle is by more light from all sources. Heat there is in abundance. What is needed is illumination.

Gratifying is the announcement that in November the Senate committee on interstate and foreign commerce will begin hearings at which some of the witnesses will be representatives of the largest of the corporations. Their side of the case must be heard fairly, and their contention that international as well as national trade depends on permitted suppression of competition be weighed in the light of facts. Such a balanced type of investigation cannot be other than educational while under way. It can hardly fail to lead to sounder results in legislation.

Next week sixty-two additional students from China are due to arrive at San Francisco to enter American colleges and schools. All save three are to be supported with the income of the large indennity fund which the United States returned to China following the extortion which Europe and America practised upon the Asiatic empire after the Boxer outbreak. Two hundred other Chinese youth are now in the country studying as beneficiaries of this same fund, and an equal number are paying their way from private incomes. So that approximately 500 of the picked youth of the awakened nation are getting their collegiate training in a republic and in institutions that are dominated by the Christian ethic. Add to these the large number of Chinese who graduated from colleges and universities in China administered by Americans and supported by American donors' gifts or from universities founded by the Chinese government but products of the administrative ability and pedagogic skill of Americans like Tenney and Martin, and it is clear that upon the life of "new China" the stamp of the United States is to be distinct and enduring.

This is evident from the success that earlier graduates from colleges and universities of the United States, who came here in the '80s, are now having in China as builders of railways, governors of provinces and advisers in foreign affairs. Had China not suddenly stopped that earlier stream of her best youth to America she might sooner have awakened to the necessity of modernizing her internal administration, her army and navy and her foreign affairs department. As it is, America, directly and indirectly, through educational influences, has had much to do with shaping the striking changes of the past five years; and the end is not yet.

Never was there a more strategic as well as just act than America's decision to give back to China the United States' share of the millions that were squeezed from her following the Boxer massacres. Together with similar honorable acts it has given the United States a moral influence at Peking that no other power appears to have, and it has intensified the desire of Chinese youth to get a first insight into occidental political and economic conditions and a first touch with foreign ideals of religion, marriage, education, philanthropy, from American teachers. The moral responsibilities which this invasion by Chinese youth of both sexes puts upon teachers, upon native students and upon citizens of academic towns, are onerous, but they are welcomed by all persons who accept living as a serious affair, set apart for exemplary service.

Pursuing the Hittites

Surplus wealth finds few worthier channels of expenditure than in support of efforts to increase knowledge of man's earliest achievements in collective and civilized modes of life carried on in Asia, the mother continent. Thanks to the generous support of European and American donors and to the intelligent exploration of savants during the past century, much is now known of races, dynasties, literatures and religions that were hidden from view when archeology was without the support of western wealth, and when explorers' invasion of the lands where empires rose and fell was full of hazard on account of Moslem fanatics.

Of recent disclosures few have interested Biblical scholars more than the sidelights cast on the history of the Hittites, a non-Semitic people, resident in North Syria and southeastern Asia Minor for at least a thousand years, possibly up to 600 B. C. Referred to often in the literatures of Israel, Egypt and Assyria and leaving their own records in elaborate pictographs, it was not until the last third of the nineteenth century that Biblical scholars, archeologists and students of Asiatic history began seriously to study evidence that even now is far from being deciphered, much of that already done being confessedly tentative in its rendering.

To Prof. A. H. Sayce of Oxford University, more than to any man, is due most of the light that now illuminates the chronicles of a people of considerable importance in their day, who controlled the great highways of communication between Asia and Europe and grew rich thereby. Naturally, therefore, the appeal now goes up from British patrons of the fine arts and archeological research, urging financing on a handsome scale of an exploring expedition to the land of the Hittites, where, under modernized, liberal Turkish rule, investigation can be pushed forward on a scale and with a certainty of reaping results not possible under the rule of Abdul Hamid II.

So far as the pictographs already discovered have been deciphered, they second the impression given by the Anatolian sculptures and other works of art, namely, that, while clever and effective for a time in both war and trade, the Hittites, whose daughters were sought in marriage by neighboring kings and whose sons bravely withstood the soldiers of Rameses and the cohorts of Babylon, were not especially gifted contributors to the intellectual or esthetic life of the near east. They did enough to make it necessary hereafter to consider the Syrian as more of a factor in human history than hitherto he had been rated. After all, he played a minor role. But it is the part of prudence to be less dogmatic and prophetic. The spade may disclose proof which will raise the Hittite to a rank now not predictable with such evidence as is in hand.

Army Posts and Large Cities It is reported from Washington that the war department has under advisement a proposal looking to the concentration of the regular army at large stations strategically situated for military purposes; in other words, it is understood that the department is considering seriously the abandonment of the small army posts and the creation of more large ones in the vicinity of populous cities. Sanction of Congress will be necessary to the carrying out of such a project. If the scheme of erecting barracks at various points capable of accommodating whole regiments goes through, the cost will be great. Moreover, the plan means the desertion of many posts for the establishment of which the government has expended large sums of money.

It is said in support of the plan that most of the commissioned officers would find accommodations within the city near which they were stationed, obviating the necessity of building extensive quarters for them on the military reservation. Whether this would be in the interest of economy is a question. Military officers in many instances find it difficult enough to make ends meet in the posts situated near small towns; the social exactions of city life would only add to the drain upon their incomes.

However, it is the enlisted man, rather than the officer, whose interests should first be considered here. It has been said that, while the vessels are at sea, the navy is a splendid school for young men who are in need of, or have a taste for, maritime training. The objectionable feature of the service lies in the liability of young men, often mere boys, to be thrown in contact with the worst element of the ports visited by the warships. When the ship is exchanged for the slum the school is anything but a good one. Enlisted men in the remote military posts are at least removed from the contaminating influences of the cities; it is doubtful if the morale of the regular army would be improved by bringing soldiers from the outlying posts and concentrating them in baracks convenient to populous cities.

Since it seems necessary for the present that the country shall have an army and a navy, it is desirable that the boys and young men who enter the service shall be protected from the temptations most likely to come in their way. For the sake of the uniform as well as the men, young fellows of whom the government assumes the guardianship should not be permitted, when absent from their companies or ships, to go without restraint in the cities. Some responsibility should be taken for them. The dignity of their employer should command respect for the uniform, but it will not do so until the employer takes a deeper interest in the welfare of those who wear it than it seems to take now. With the experience of the sailors in view, thoughtful observers will hardly take kindly to a proposal that threatens to turn the soldiers too freely on the city streets.

Professor Percival Lowell believes that another canal has come into view on Mars, and he is going to study it from Flagstaff, Ariz. If he finds that his belief is well founded, will Flagstaff fall into line with San Diego and San Francisco in the matter of holding canal-opening expositions?

THE haste of Governor Dix of New York to get about the public's business has caused the police to check his automobile speeding. This seems, however, a matter that can be adjusted, even without arbitration. If the Governor starts to work earlier he will not need to be in so great a hurry.

No CANDIDATE for the United States Senate can now legally spend more than $10,000 on his campaign. There are many men qualified for the Senate who could not afford to spend one tenth of that sum in the hope of entering it.

If a vast herd of seals has been discovered on a remote Arctic island, the interesting thing about it is that it is impossible for anything that man is looking for to find an island remote enough on which to hide itself.

It is, nevertheless, a mistake to suppose that all male Americans are baseball enthusiasts. There were over 200 entries for the national lawn tennis tournament that is on in Newport this week.

Mexico, having had the experience of an unlimited presidential tenure, now takes up the other extreme with General Reyes announcing that there should be no reelection of a President.

IT MUST be said in justice to the British railroad men that when they are at work they keep themselves quite busy attending to the needs and comforts of the public.

BY MAKING it easier for suitable men to enter the consular service the state department has learned that a more suitable list can be secured from which to choose.

The proposition to deprive the President of his veto power is one that would have to stand the referendum.

Not so many years ago it was said by a prominent publicist of New York city that he could obtain for his son at Hampton Institute for Negroes and Indians a better education for living than could be had at any public or private school in the metropolis. The fact, of course, was that the Virginia institution which Gen. S. C. Armstrong made famous had worked out a curriculum, both vocational and cultural, which has since profoundly influenced not only southern but also northern educational theories. The fact that a New Yorker made this admission is recalled by a document, just at hand, issued by the bureau of education, Manila, which provides a similar comparison. It is the syllabus of the course of instruction on economic conditions in the Philippines given to Filipino high school seniors. Study of the document provokes the query whether seniors in Boston or New York high schools, or the freshmen of Yale or Harvard, are getting anything like as practical aid for living from their study of economics.

Education for Living

From facts open to their own investigation as to methods of creating wealth, raising crops, breeding animals, cutting and marketing timber, manufacturing goods, and marketing the same, whether among Negritos, Subanuns, Igarots or the Filipinos, lessons are drawn, comparisons with conditions in other lands made, and advice given as to betterment of Philippine conditions. The experiences of other oriental peoples in adjustment of traditional methods to modern conditions of living are cited. Every aid that governmental action, legislation, "expert" advice can give to resuscitation of waning industries and establishment of new ways of creating wealth is commented upon as full of ideas for the Filipinos. Reasons for past systems of land tenure, and causes for modification of the same, are furnished. The interrelations of agriculture, density of population and manufacturing and commerce are dwelt upon. In short, there are no phases of the economic evolution of community living which are not brought to the attention of pupils in a concrete way, by use of Philippine facts. Youths under this system are being prepared not only for broader and more solidly founded business careers. They are also being trained for intelligent citizenship as voters in municipal and assembly elections. This is the announced motive of the course.

Good Outlook in Mexico RECENT intelligence from different points in Mexico likely to reflect the conditions prevailing in the republic is encouraging. Order has been reestablished, except in parts of the states of Puebla, Morelos and Guerrero. Even in these states, the more responsible residents are desirous of having it understood abroad that any disturbances are of a local and trivial character. In the state last named, it is asserted, those former revolutionists who still carry arms, instead of being opposed to the provisional government, are really acting as guards for the protection of the mines against lawless characters. In Morales, of the 6000 men under arms during the recent uprising, only a remnant is left. The towns are garrisoned by troops friendly to the federal authority. In all other parts of the country, the men who served under Madero have been discharged and dispersed. Generally speaking, they are resuming their former peaceful occupations.

It would seem, from the surveys made of the situation, that Mexico has recovered in an extraordinarily short time from the effects of the revolution, and that disturbances even in the remote and more troublesome sections are not so serious as might reasonably be expected as a result of the disbanding of an insurrectionary army. Perhaps the most encouraging phase of the Mexican outlook is to be found in the anxiety of Mexicans to have it appear abroad that their country is tranquil. Time was, and that within half a century, when the Mexicans were not so sensitive on this

The change has been due to the world's general advancement; but, specifically, Mexico during the last forty years has developed international relationships which make the maintenance of stable government and good order vital to her prosperity. Hundreds of millions of foreign capital are invested in her banking, manufacturing, industrial and general business interests, and, as is the case with all nations dependent so largely upon outside capital, her reputation largely determines her credit.

Mexico must still pass through another great test. What will amount to her first really popular election of a chief magistrate is yet to be held. The manner in which she has carried herself through the recent revolution and the disposition of her people to settle to their legitimate occupations go far, however, toward assuring the outside world of her ability to meet the coming crisis.

THE Latin races seem not to have that capacity to endure criticism which is attained by Teutons. The tendency of their governors, when under fire of journalistic attack, is to silence the opposition by summary suppression of journal and writers. Justification of official conduct by prompt publicity as to the real facts or by patient waiting for time to disclose real motives of official action is not resorted to. It is much easier to issue

Cuba's Need an executive decree exiling the critic. Cuba now has a President who is formally and informally charged with venality on a large scale. Correspondents of European and American journals are free in their accusations, and so are a few Havana editors. The former it is not politic to touch. The latter President Gomez has just decided to get rid of by autocratic assertion of authority.

Yet conditions in Cuba now are such as to make it a peculiarly inopportune time for President Gomez to raise this issue of freedom of thought and speech. Such action can hardly fail to accentuate rather than to diminish distrust of him. With his interests in view, it seems to be bad tactics. From the public standpoint, it may be "the beginning of the end" of a career of self-seeking that has brought the island back to conditions forcing reemergence of talk of American intervention.

Cuba's crying need at the present time seems to be for a popular leader, disinterested, sagacious and sincerely bent on conserving insular independence and prosperity. The United States has no lust for territory or for further political responsibilities in the islands of the sea. She wants a self-controlled, prosperous, progressively minded and honestly administered neighbor. If Cubans have a man capable of disinterested leadership as President of the republic he may well be put in line to succeed President Gomez.
